Subject: [SPAM-Sender] Former OMB Official on EPA Transparency in Science Rule

Ms. Bradford:

EPA's well intended--but poorly designed--- rule for transparency in science will not provide the relief so claimed and will thwart real reform because it fails to capitalize on existing statutes which address an identical problem.

I am with the Center for Regulatory Effectiveness and I am addressing an issue seldom addressed in the comments submitted to EPA as of this date notwithstanding EPA highlighting its concern, namely:

"EPA solicits comment on this proposal and how it can best be promulgated and implemented in light of existing law and prior Federal policies that already require increasing public access to data and influential scientific information used to inform federal regulation.

To verify the authenticity of the Center for Regulatory Effectiveness and my association thereto here is a link to articles I have written which have been published on the Yale Law – American Bar Association Website: <http://yalejreg.com/nc/?s=tozzi>. Open any article on the aforementioned website and you will see at the end of each article a link to both the Center for Regulatory Effectiveness and one which describes my affiliation with it.

You may then read my views on this subject by visiting the website of the Center for Regulatory Effectiveness at <http://www.thecre.com/forum8/?p=2276>

We would appreciate receiving any relevant materials you have on this subject for our use in upcoming discussions with Administration officials.

Respectfully,
